POPULAR TALK"INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY RIGHT" ORGANISED BY INTERNAL QUALITY ASSURANCE CELL

Popular Talk addressed by Shri. Bikash Yogi, Advocate, Tura Bar Association on 13th November 2018 at Tura Government College, Tura at 11.00 AM-12.30 PM.

Introduction:

Intellectual Property Right was recognized and began to be used in 19th century and in 20th century it became common place in the world. IPR are the rights given to person over the creations of their minds. It usually gives the creator an exclusive right over the use of His or her own creation for a certain period of time. It refers to the general term for the assignment of property rights through patents, copyrights and trademarks. It allows the individual to exercise a monopoly on the use of the item for a specific period.

Context:

Intellectual Property Right gives the right of ownership of ideas, designs, lyrics of song writer, manuscripts, including library and artistic works which can be protected by copyright; whereas inventions like machines, products like perfumes, cosmetics, etc are protected by patents. There are specific signs of distinguishing goods of an enterprise and other elements of industrial property which can be protected by trademarks. It also includes trade secrets, publicity rights, moral rights and rights against unfair competition. There are Artistic works like music, photography, literature, discoveries, inventions, designs, symbols that can also be protected as intellectual property.

Purpose:

Intellectual Property Right is to encourage the creation of a large variety of intellectual goods.

Protection:

Article 1 section 8 of the US constitution gives authority to grant authors and inventors exclusive rights to their creations.

Protecting against Infringement:

It refers to unauthorized use of intellectual property. Providing notice helps deter infringement by making the owner's right more visible to those who might inadvertently violate them. It also triggers additional benefits and puts the owner in a better position to prosecute an infringement in court, if that becomes necessary. In case of infringement owner has legal right to claim depending on the case from Rs 50,000 to Rs 2,00,000/-

POPULAR TALK

Talk on "Human Rights" delivered by Shri Tengsrang M. Sangma, Public Prosecutor, Tura, on 13th November 2018 at Tura Government College, Tura at 12:30 PM – 1:30 PM organised by IQAC, TGC.

Introduction: In today's world, the problem of protecting the Human Rights has assumed a key importance. The concept and principles of Human Rights are the hallmark of modern civilised and democratic societies. The resource person asserts that Human Rights are to be understood as the totality of the most substantial democratic rights which states must grant to the people within the sphere of its jurisdiction. Human Rights are the rights a person has simply because he or she is a human being. Human Rights are understood as rights which belong to any individual as a consequence of being Human. It is important to note that Human rights being the rights of everyone has assumed great significance at the individual, group, national and international levels. No cause is more worthy than the cause of human rights. The international community's appreciation of the unique worth of every human being led not only to a concern for the elimination of elements destructive of the individual but also to a concern for the creation of the conditions which would enable him or her to develop and flourish. D.D. Basu: "Human Rights are those minimal rights which every individual must have against the state, or any public authority, by virtue of his being a member of human family irrespective of any considerations."

International Declaration: The concept of Human Rights falls within the framework of constitutional laws and international law. For this purpose, it has been identified to 'defend by institutionalised means the rights of human beings against abuses of power committed by organs of the state and at the same time to promote the establishment of human living conditions. The International Bill of Human Rights consists of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights and the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights. The Universal Declaration of Human Rights (UDHR) is a milestone document in the history of Human Rights. The Declaration was proclaimed by the United Nations General Assembly in Paris on 10th December 1948 General Assembly Resolution 217 A as a common standard of achievements for all people and all nations. It sets out, for the first time, fundamental human rights to be universally protected.

Importance: Proponents of the concept usually assert that everyone is endowed with certain entitlements merely by reason of being human. It is a fundamental right that humans have by reason of being human that are neither created nor can be abrogated by any government. It specifies the minimum condition for overall development of human beings and to live with dignity. Human Rights is defined as the supreme, inherent and inalienable rights to life, to dignity and to self-development. It is concerned with both civil and political rights and economic, social and cultural rights founded on internationally accepted human rights obligations. The doctrine of Human Rights has been highly influential within international law, global and regional institutions. The idea of Human Rights suggests that if the public discourse of peacetime global society can be said to have a common moral language it is that of Human rights. The strong claims made by the doctrine of Human rights continue to provoke considerable scepticism and debates about the content, nature and justifications of Human Rights. Mr T.M. Sangma substantiated the importance and knowledge of Human Rights from his own experiences.

THE ROLE OF EDUCATION SECTOR IN REMOVING GENDER ISSUES

Addressed by Smt Charlotte W Momin

Retired Additional Director of School Education and Former Member of Meghalaya State Women Commission

This topic with an aim of sensitising everyone on an important concern relating to gender inequality, analyses the international conventions and constitutional mandate along with statutory mechanism to tackle the discrimination based on sex in the most significant matter that is education. It also touches incidentally the socio-economic aspects of gender issues/inequality. Educators should foster in students equality, promote and strengthen the constitutional culture and stability. The purpose is to remove pre-judices and complexes transmitted through the social environment and the accident of birth. It is important to ensure the education system must play a positive role in the empowerment of people and removal of all kinds of biases which are basically manmade.

Access to education is key to ensuring women have access to work opportunities, decent health care and representation in political and economic processes, yet in India there is still a struggle to give girls the same level of education as their male peers.

According to UNICEF, poverty and cultural beliefs- that cause discrimination against girls are some of the major factors behind gender inequality in education throughout India. Another barrier to education for girls is a lack of sanitation in schools across the country.

It has been rightly said that when you "Educate a man, you educate one person education in woman, you educate a complete family. " In societies where woman have been in the shadows till the late 20th century special drives and schemes are being conducted to educate women, bring them to the forefront and facilitate a holistic development of the society. In India apart from social reformer who work for girls education government is also promoting education by schemes like BETI BACHAO BETI PADHAO. In India, girls education is still a matter of concern, in schools, students are treated equally inspite of their gender, demographics, caste etc. From a very small age, students(especially boys) start seeing and treating girls equally. So first step towards gender equality is providing education to girls and promoting them with equal opportunities.

As per census of 2011, an effective literary rate for men was 82.14 % whereas for women it was 65.46 % rates in India. So education is a matter of gender equality in India.
